Illegal logging is a pervasive problem, causing enormous damage to forests, local communities, and the economies of producer countries. Despite the economic importance of trade in timber and forest products, major international timber consumer countries, such as the EU, have no legal means to halt the import of illegally sourced forest products, because the identification of illegally logged ...

In 2008, GIT-Forestry, a forestry consulting company owned by our dear friend Mr. Gustavo Iglesias Trabado, released through the blog Eucalyptologics a detailed forest map showing countries where there are commercial plantations of Eucalyptus and the total area planted in each one. This unique work is the result of Gus' commitment to grow the information resources about Eucalyptus in the world.
