Computational complexity theory focuses on classifying computational problems according to their inherent difficulty, and relating these classes to each other. A computational problem is a task solved by a computer. A computation problem is solvable by mechanical application of mathematical steps, such as an algorithm.

Computational phylogenetics is the application of computational algorithms, methods, and programs to phylogenetic analyses. The goal is to assemble a phylogenetic tree representing a hypothesis about the evolutionary ancestry of a set of genes, species, or other taxa. For example, these techniques have been used to explore the family tree of hominid species and the relationships between ...

I have a bibtex database of optimization references (900K) available online. These are mostly interior point references. A searchable version of this bibliography is also available. I also have an unorganized list of announcements of computational packages that are available for solving a variety of problems. This page is not updated often enough, so some of the links are no longer functional.
