Patronage (clientela) was the distinctive relationship in ancient Roman society between the patronus (plural patroni, "patron") and their cliens (plural clientes, "client"). The relationship was hierarchical, but obligations were mutual. The patronus was the protector, sponsor, and benefactor of the client; the technical term for this protection was patrocinium.

1. Introduction Public administration in the 21st century is undergoing dramatic change, especially in advanced economies, but also in many parts of the developing world.

From Old Public Administration to the New Public Service

The phenomenon of retail patronage has received significant attention in the retailing literature (Pan and Zinkhan 2006). Establishing and maintaining a close relationship with customers to convert them into "patrons" still represents a key strategic aim of many firms, as doing so leads to sustainable sales and profits and, thereby, return on investments (Hogreve et al. 2017).
